

I opened the magical door and smelt the tender,glorious chicken catching my nose as it moved from table to table like a wave moving across the shore.

I opened the magical door and saw, the monkeys swinging around like active children.

I opened the door and heard the loud squicks and shouts of pets can be heard by two miles away.

I opened the magical door and felt the feeling of the roast meat and chips slaping my face in flavour.

I opened the magical door and witnessed the unpatient animal wating for its etension from people all over.

I opened the magical door and felt the smooth edges of chips make your togue twist.

I opened the magical door and witnessed the souts of all the animals lineing up and shouting to get adopted.

I opened the magical door and heard the loud ocean of a sea shell it felt like I was waveing with the ocean

I opened the magical door and saw the future.
